PROJECT DESCRIPTION

Interior designer Victoria Bell and her husband had purchased this house as their first home and Victoria, of course, designed everything without the help of another designer. However, this was actually before she took a leap of faith and started her own business. This was the project that started it all and planted the seed for her entrepreneurial journey. Once their home was complete and they started to have friends over, people were so impressed and started asking for Victoria's design help left and right. While Victoria was a full-time teacher at this time (she had majored in Judaic studies to become a teacher), her side hobby of design became a true passion that she realized she could turn into a successful business, especially as she felt so fulfilled as a talented designer.
